

FALL BRIBERY TRIAL HALTED

Today

Great German.
Ramsay MacDonald Defined.
To Jail Respectability.
Vanishing Legends.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THE burial of Stresemann, Germany's truly great statesman, emphasizes the enduring power and common sense of the new German Republic. There was no military display of any kind. Von Hindenburg, aged president of the republic, walked behind the coffin, followed by the entire diplomatic corps on foot.

THE funeral procession passed under the Arch of the Emperors, built to the glory of the German imperial family and until the war reserved exclusively for Hohenzollerns.

Stresemann was the first commoner whose body ever passed under that arch excepting Friedrich Ebert, the Socialist harnessmaker, first president of the German Republic.

Germany belongs now to thinkers, Germans and to the people of Germany and is managed for their glory and profit.

THE difference between Ramsay MacDonald and some other important men that talk about peace is well expressed by W. R. Hearst in an article welcoming the Labor Prime Minister. Mr. Hearst says of Mr. MacDonald:

"He does not come from the CLASSES that send people to war. He comes from the MASSES who are sent to war."

THOSE that buy whisky from bootleggers were horrified at the decision of a federal judge holding the bootlegger's customer guilty of conspiring to transport liquor in defiance of law.

A higher court reversed that decision, and bootleg customers, including 75 per cent of our "better element," were comforted.

NOW Senator Sheppard, of Ohio, as dry as the deepest spot in Death Valley, suggests amending the Volstead act to make purchasers of liquor as guilty and criminal as bootlegging sellers.

SUCH an amendment of course, would strengthen prohibition enormously. Respectable prosperity would refuse to buy, fearing jail, and blackmail after buying.

But Senator Sheppard's amendment probably will not pass, many legislators are themselves bootleg customers.

NICHOLAS WEINAND, 84 years old, a member of Chicago's fire department when the city burned, says Mrs. O'Leary's cow had nothing to do with the fire and nobody knows how it started.

Passing legends are attacked, but survive attack.

William Tell never shot an apple off his son's head, but the story has been useful, causing millions to take an interest in struggles for freedom.

THE boy did not stand on the burning deck, George Washington did not cut down the cherry tree, and say that he could not tell a lie.

THOMAS E. MITTEN, recently drowned, had reorganized Philadelphia's street car system, establishing good relations with labor.

His will leaves millions for "the promotion and advancement of the cause of co-operation between capital and labor."

Rather a difficult program, even with several millions back of it. Labor wants from capital a fair share of what they produce, and doesn't always get it.

Capital wants from labor earn and doesn't always get it.

Peace between capital and labor is an even more important than peace among nations, since it refers to a war that is always on.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM GREEN asks the American Federation of Labor to "unite the south." He urges all organizations to make definite provisions for work in the south.

The notion that the south every where objects to labor unions and welcomes northern capital is denied by Clark Kinnard, editor of Education, North Carolina. He says: "And owned by northern capital, employing 1,000 persons, is no advantage to a town. The workers paid $12 a week, work 12 hours a day. They have only $12 a week to spend, which means that they do not contribute to the prosperity of the town. The money that the mill takes for the owners is spent, not in Edenton, but at Palm Beach, Newport, Paris.

"The mill workers are not home owners, they do not pay taxes. Yet they have numerous children to be educated at public expense.

AGED MAN TOO ILL TO LEAVE BED IN HOTEL

Fails to Rally After His Collapse in Courtroom.

DOCTOR CALLED
Justice Hitz Orders Physical Examination Made.

By George E. Durno.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(INS)—The trial of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of interior, on charges of bribery came to at least a temporary halt today when the aged defendant, who collapsed in court yesterday, failed to rally sufficiently to leave his bed.

Dr. Ruffin Appointed.
Justice William Hitz, advised by counsel at the opening of court of Fall's condition, promptly appointed Dr. Stirling Ruffin, prominent local physician, to make an examination of the defendant in behalf of the court.

Frank J. Hogan, chief of defense counsel, stepped to the bar with the announcement of his client's illness immediately upon the convening hour.

"Have you any suggestions?" asked Hitz.

"None," replied Hogan. "Then I think I shall appoint a physician of standing and reputation to examine him," the justice said. "Has Dr. Stirling Ruffin any connection with this case?"

"Very Sick Man" is Report.
Upon being answered in the negative, Hitz said he would ask Ruffin to get in touch with Fall's doctor at once, "calling in a third if deemed advisable."

Dr. H. T. Safford, Fall's doctor, reported that there was a recurrence of the coughing of blood this morning. Fall's temperature is still up also and his resiliency seemingly is gone. Only in the pulse was there any improvement at all.

He is a very sick man," Safford said.

500 TO HEAR EXPERT COOK

Review's Free School Will Open Next Tuesday.

Housekeeping problems as well as the art of cooking will be discussed in the Review's four-day cooking school which will open in the Eagles' auditorium, Broadway, at 2 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon.

Seating accommodations for 500 persons have been provided in the hall, doors of which will be open at 1 o'clock. Sessions also will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Mrs. Frances Northcote, Chicago, an authority in cooking and home economics, will be the lecturer.

It is an economic fact that the housewife spends about 85 per cent of the family income. Two items, food and equipment, aside from usual furnishings, represent a major portion of this outlay.

To handle this great responsibility demands keen appreciation of values and demands every available aid in arranging a spending plan.

Housekeeping may be divided into a multitude of departments all calling for a business-like program, with expenditures carefully scheduled. Ideas on marketing constitute an important part of the budget operation, and the lecturer will devote considerable time to advising on menu planning and economical buying.

Another important subject to be covered in these lectures is that of cheerful and self-respecting attitude for housework.

All banks and Building and Loans will be closed Saturday Oct. 12, Columbus day.—Ad.

BRITISH CHIEF QUILTS CAPITAL ON THURSDAY

Ramsay MacDonald Spends Last Day With Hoover.

"MOP UP" TASKS
Prime Minister Will Go to New York And Canada.

By DAVID SENTNER.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(INS)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, labor leader of Great Britain who never went to a university, today received the degree of doctor of law from George Washington university for his devotion to the cause of international peace.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(INS)—This was Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's last day in the capital before he departs for Philadelphia, New York and Canada.

Although his peace mission was virtually concluded as far as official negotiations were concerned, there were two final conferences with President Hoover on the day's schedule.

The British premier was to meet the president in the morning to "mop up" the discussions concerning Anglo-American amity. It was considered likely that the president and the prime minister would exchange final views on such subjects as war debts, naval bases and violations of the prohibition law at sea.

As far as the coming disarmament conference in London is concerned, it was understood that the statesmen had reached a complete accord.

The last meeting of the president and the prime minister in the evening was to be of a sentimental nature in which the chief executive was to bid the visiting labor premier a cordial farewell.

With the official publishing of the text of the disarmament invitations, the peace task of the prime minister was interpreted as having ended. From now on his sojourn in the country will be more social than diplomatic.

The prime minister and his daughter, Isabel, slept an hour later than usual following a day of intensive entertainment climaxed by a brilliant diplomatic dinner given by Sir Esme Howard, ambassador from Great Britain, at the British embassy.

The room, formerly occupied by the Davis, Burkham & Tyler music store, is being made ready for occupancy today. It will be open daily, with the exception of Sunday, until after the November election.

Republican Central committee will hold its weekly meeting in the new headquarters at 7:30 o'clock Friday night.

BANKS CLOSED ON SATURDAY

Banks and building and loan associations here will be closed Saturday in observance of Columbus day. There will be no observance of the day in the postoffice.

State Prohibition Chief Speaks Tonight.

Mrs. K. L. Rothwell, East Palestine, was re-elected president of the Columbiana County Woman's Christian Temperance union at this morning's session of the 39th annual convention in the First Church of Christ.

Mrs. Margaret Bricker, Lisbon, was chosen vice-president and Mrs. Mae Tyson, Columbiana, treasurer. The office of recording secretary will be filled at the afternoon session.

Mrs. Rothwell announced the appointment of Mrs. L. M. Kyes, also of East Palestine, as corresponding secretary.

Mayor Delivers Address.
State Prohibition Commissioner Rupert Beetham, Cadiz, will be the principal speaker at the closing session. He will be introduced by Mrs. Rothwell.

Mayor Ralph C. Benedum discussed his experience in law enforcement in a short address this morning. The Rev. W. H. Baker, pastor of the First Church of Christ, and Superintendent of Schools, H. G. Means were also to appear on the program during the day.

Last night's session was featured by addresses by former Mayor V. A. (Pete) Schreiber, superintendent of the Canton district of the Anti-Saloon League, and Mrs. Viola Romans, Columbus, former member of the general assembly, now state vice-president of the W. C. T. U. Banners and posters, showing the evil effects of alcohol, were displayed on the platform.

Mrs. Romans predicted an unusual onslaught from the liquor forces in Ohio next year to take the eighteenth amendment from the constitution.

"You will find that this departure will have for its end the repeal of the Crabbie act in Ohio," she asserted. "Proponents of this activity would have Ohio join the precedent established in Wisconsin recently when its legislature repealed its enforcing enactment."

She called on the W. C. T. U. to rush into the breaches at the threatening situation and by a campaign of education in the intervening months administer such a crushing defeat to the move as to make certain its non-repetition.

CLEVELAND BANDITS ESCAPE WITH $3,000 AFTER HOLDUP

Railroad Watch Inspector Victim of Robbery.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Two armed bandits, driving a car said to be listed out of Hamilton, O., held up and robbed John O'Malia, railroad watch inspector, of $3,000 which he was transporting in the Nickle Plate railroad, in the heart of the industrial district here today.

O'Malia, who is a brother of "Battling Tom" O'Malia, mayor of Lindsale, is in the habit of cashing railroaders' pay checks. He told police he was driving towards the railroad offices when a small coupe pulled up, forcing him to the curb. The two bandits jumped from their automobile and after robbing him of the money took the key to O'Malia's car, making chase impossible.

CUBS' PROBABLE PITCHING CHOICE

Pat Malone

WRIGLEY FIELD, CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Pat Malone, one of Joe McCarthy's aces, loomed as the probable pitching choice of the Cubs' pilot for the second game of the World's series today. Connie Mack, as was the case yesterday, was silent regarding his selection, and some of the experts were predicting that he might send "Old Man" Jack Quinn, who is 46, to the mound. Quinn is known as a "cold weather" twirler.

MODERATE, SOUTHEASTERLY WIND. PREDICTED AS FANS THROG PARK

"Fort Wrigley" Police Launch Warfare Against Suspected Scalpers, With Result That Youths are Arrested as Connie Mack And Joe McCarthy Prepare for Attack.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(INS.)—"Moderate, southeasterly winds" and cloudy skies were predicted for the second game of the world's series here this afternoon between the Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago Cubs.

Government forecasters said rain was expected by tonight but they did not believe there would be any precipitation before or during the game.

It was slightly colder today than yesterday. "Increasing cloudiness Wednesday, showers Wednesday night and probably on Thursday; not much change in temperature," was the text of the forecast.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Eight youths today were in the custody of federal authorities following a wholesale roundup waged against world series ticket scalpers by 30 internal revenue collectors.

Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge sent out the detectives last week to keep on the lookout for persons attempting to sell the tickets for more than the quoted prices and thus defraud the government of a portion of the amusement tax.

Five of the alleged scalpers were seized in front of the Cubs' ball park where they were said to be offering tickets to passersby.

They gave their names as John Hobeau, 32, Philip Udell, 22, Hugh Dwyer, 38, Raymond Rose, 22, and Michael Casey, 28.

"Little World Series." ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Weather conditions were fairly promising for the afternoon's "little world series" game between the Kansas City Blues of the American association and the Rochester Red Wings, winners of the International league pennant.

It was cold but a bright sun broke through the clouds at intervals during the forenoon.

Indications were that Paul Derringer would be Rochester's pitching selection. Manager "Dutch" Zwilling of the Blues gave no indication of whom he would select for mound duty. Derringer pitched seven innings in Kansas City and turned in a fine job.

Tex Carleton, star flinger of the Red Wings, scored his second triumph of the series yesterday, bringing Rochester within a game of Kansas City in the games so far played.

This is the second time that the radio has been used in the local schools. A radio set was used in almost every school building for the broadcast of the inauguration of President Herbert Hoover at Washington last March.

FORMER THEATER MANAGER DIES

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Pneumonia contracted from lying for more than 24 hours at the foot of an embankment in Ambler park here, was held responsible today for the death of William Gallagher, 60, retired theater manager.

Gallagher had been missing from his home since Sunday. He was in a semi-conscious condition when found. He died several hours later. Relatives said Gallagher had suffered frequent lapses of memory since the death of his brother and sister recently in Minneapolis.

EMULATES MACK, OUTWITS BANDIT

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Connie Mack, of the Athletics, took a chance and won yesterday and J. B. Ostroske, confectioner, is also celebrating his good fortune today.

Two men entered Ostroske's store and told him "to put 'em up," instead he dropped not only his hands but the bulk of his body to the floor and raised his voice. The strangers ran.

Hit-Run Autoist Kills Man DAYTON, O., Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Frank Ullmer, 54, a local grocer, is dead here today as the result of injuries which he suffered a week ago when he was run down by a hit-and-run autoist.

Train Kills Unidentified Man XENIA, O., Oct. 9.—(INS.)—An unidentified man, about 40, who is believed to have been a vagrant, was killed today when he attempted to board a freight train in the Pennsylvania railroad yards here.

RADIO CONTROL AT LAST CONQUERS FOG

One of the most feared obstacles in flying, namely fog, has at last been conquered by American science. Lieutenant James H. Doolittle, U. S. A., in tests recently conducted at Mitchel Field, Long Island, made a fifteen mile "blind flight" and landed safely through the fog and darkness without even seeing the ground. The device in the upper left panel shows the system of radio distance gauges which oscillate right or left on orders transmitted from the radio tower shown at right. As the plane approached the transmitter, the vibrations become stronger and the pilot knows he is approaching his goal. Another device gives the pilot a miniature horizon line with which to gauge his distance from the ground when landing. Lieutenant Doolittle (below), is considerably elated over the success of the experiments which have been carried on in secret for some time.

In Baseball Hall of Fame

The name of Howard Ehmke, elongated right-hander, who is often called the "hesitation" pitcher because of his tantalizing slow ball, is enrolled in baseball's hall of fame today, for the former Detroit Tiger and Boston Red Sox, wound up his 14-year career yesterday by breaking a world series record for strikeouts and placing the first game of the 1925 classic on the right side of the ledger for the Philadelphia American League team.

This long, lean man of 35, an age when most of his former teammates have retired from baseball to practice law or dentistry or engaged in the practice of another profession or, perhaps, establish themselves in business, donned his uniform at Wrigley Field in Chicago after a personal appeal to Connie Mack. Ehmke asked for the assignment, when the baseball world was expecting the wily pilot of the Athletics to announce Earnshaw, one of his aces, as his pitching choice. And McGillicuddy, the name Connie uses when he signs legal papers, realized the importance of psychology and sent his second stringer into the battle.

And what was the result? The stalwart right arm of a pitcher, recognizing the fact that he is past the age when he can withstand the demands made upon a major leaguer, notwithstanding the record of Jack Quinn, astonished the Cubs, struck out 13 of them, including Hornsby, Wilson and Cuyler who twice were sent back to the bench after fanning the air, and held them at his mercy during the nine-inning battle.

It was a masterpiece in pitching, earned Ehmke the right to a hero's place in the hearts of baseball lovers and, incidentally, gave the American champions the upper hand, at least for the moment, in the struggle for the highest honors in the national pastime. Ehmke, who will retire from baseball after the present series, attained the highest peak of his career and well deserved the laurels bestowed upon him.

As a result of this exhibition by a man who is on his way out of the big leagues, baseball fans would not be surprised today if Connie Mack again upset the experts by sending "Old Faithful" Jack Quinn, who is said to be 46, to the mound in the second game. And there are many followers in baseball who will wager their pay envelope that Jack, who is not thinking of quitting the game, will carve a niche for himself in the imaginary place of honor reserved for those whose deeds are classed above the ordinary.

Road Hogs

A Dayton motorist was fined $25 and costs for disputing the right of way with a deputy sheriff's car equipped with noise-making devices peculiar to police automobiles, ambulances and such.

There are times when an official car impeded by a road hog may be slowed up so effectively that serious consequences will result. The road hog should be properly punished in such cases.

But what of the road hog who has no regard whatever for the pedestrian trying to find a lane through which he may safely cross the street? What of the road hog who stops his automobile over the crosswalk at intersections, and looks insolently at the pedestrian, evidently thinking "what's the matter, worm?"

Crossing some of East Liverpool's streets is a race with death. Frequently the pedestrian wins and the chagrined motorist gives himself a mental kick for letting the walker get away, promising to get him the next time. And if the pedestrian doesn't watch his step the chances are he will be mowed down the next time he steps off a sidewalk.

It is a menace to the pedestrian to even start across some of the intersections protected by traffic lights. Motorists pull up to the point where the crosswalk is closed off. The pedestrian can't walk behind the car, because the driver following has closed up the gap. He can't walk in front, because if he does and the light turns, the man in the machine won't give him a chance to walk out of the way, but forces him to leap for his life.

Road hogs are a nuisance and the safety department should not spare them.

Epigrammatic Governor

Years ago, when Myers Y. Cooper was building houses in Cincinnati, he probably dreamed about the position that he aspired to hold eventually and outlined certain courses of conduct which he believed would help him. Now, having attained the governorship of Ohio, he is in a position to take stock of the worth of those courses.

He revealed some of them the other day when he visited Wooster and spoke to the young people at Wooster college. The governor dealt in epigrams during the course of his talk and some of them were surprisingly full of punch, vigorously delivered. It is not a fast age, Governor Cooper vouchsafed, but it is fair to observe that it is a fast age for a slow man. And he also said tired feet is a prevalent and dangerous disease, adding that tired feet are not found on the road to success and real happiness. Those remarks are to the point, easily understood and they are loaded with food for thought.

Among other things Governor Cooper said: "There is no market for an uncertainty; boys and girls should have good opinions of themselves, justified by their conduct. Popularity which comes to young people through wrong-doing is short lived. The most delicate thing in the world is honor; I adjure young people to guard it with care. A clear conscience is the most comforting thing anyone can have; economic well being is essential to self-respect. Opportunities for getting on in the world are greater than ever before; hard work, persistent effort and preparation will continue to be the essential to success."

HASKIN LETTER DAILY

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 9.—To what extent the combined effects of greater longevity among Americans and the speed of the machine age are producing a class of elderly men unable to find gainful occupations is being studied by the American Federation of Labor. The problem is one of tremendous proportions. The idea of providing for the rainy day of advancing age is an old one. Modern conditions seem to have brought about a situation in which there are more rainy days and longer ones.

The president's committee on recent economic changes in its report declared that today there are "more jobs in which the vigor of youth is demanded and fewer in which the sort of skill is needed which would increase with age."

Back in 1950 actuarial statistics showed that the average life span was only 40 years. Scientific research and patient labor, especially along the lines of sanitation and prevention as well as cure of disease, has increased this life expectancy to more than 56 years. But of all the workmen in the United States gainfully employed, only 30 per cent are over 15 years of age.

The problem is obvious. There are more middle-aged and elderly men and fewer jobs to offer them in spite of the rapid growth of the country and development of its manifold industries. Many philosophers and other commentators on life in general have laid down the rule that a man doesn't have sense enough to marry until he is 40 years old. But if modern industrial conditions are such that soon after that age, the machine age puts him on the shelf, his prospects for a career of matrimony are rather slim for it has not yet been demonstrated that two can live as cheaply as one and one one cannot live with financial support.

It is natural that in the trades requiring strength and agility youth would be served to the prejudice of the tottering and it is seen that of the mechanics in the country holding jobs only 13.2 per cent are over 45 years of age. But the white collar aged have been affected. The spectacle of the aged clerk is rarely met with outside government offices. Forty-five is by no means a great age; indeed many men have scarcely reached their prime before the half-century mark. This applies not only to experience and skill in the job but also to physical condition.

With so large a proportion of the men of the country playing golf, tennis, doing daily dozens, and living and working in better lighted, heated, and ventilated rooms than ever before, the average health of the American at 50 is excellent, unless he has been careless or met with misfortune.

The income tax returns might suggest that, by the age of 45, most of the young men have become millionaires but common sense refutes any such statement. There is no question that the invasion of practically every line of work, profession, or industry by women has had a great deal to do with the decrease in the number of jobs open to middle-aged men, but recognition of that phenomenon does not in any way mitigate the situation.

The speed of the machine age demands youth. There is a subconscious prejudice on the part of employers against men past the flush of youth. The machines which grind out everything from steam locomotives to common pins with tireless energy demand tireless human energy to serve them and employers, while not admitting any prejudice against older men, instinctively fear that the machine may be slowed up if served by any but a youth bursting with vitality; and the slowing up of the machine means diminished production and loss of profits.

There is no general conscious discrimination or prejudice. Indeed, a survey made by the National Association of Manufacturers reported that in nearly three-quarters of the manufacturing plants in the United States there was no hard and fast age limit at all. No companies at all were found which discharged men merely because they had reached a certain age. Practically all were willing to re-hire them.

There is another side to the picture. While machines are performing almost every conceivable manufacturing operation today, there remain a few lines of work in which highly skilled hand work is requisite. In these, old men will be found at the benches and as there is no substantial crop of young men coming on who have acquired the necessary skill in these specialized lines, when the remaining veterans lay down their instruments for the last time, their replacement will constitute another problem.

The bows this season seem to have a more solid stand than formerly. Everything has its bow, and not only one, but sometimes several. They may be useless or useful, and one of these is just an ornament—the top one—but the other two are for a purpose other than mere decoration. The one around the waist gives the appearance of a tuck-in, and makes it easy to tie the separate skirt at a high waistline, while the lower bow is also adjustable, and is for the purpose of drawing the skirt up around the hips as snugly as desired.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The richest New Yorkers are often the slowest pay in this city of dread debt. Tradersmen are frequently jockeyed into positions where a refusal to extend further credit may jeopardize the chance of collecting at all. So they stand the gaff.

When a debt reaches certain proportions it becomes inadvisable to sue, because the case goes to a higher court and may not reach the calendar for at least two years. It is significant that many rich people rarely patronize cash institutions.

One of New York's most accomplished waiters once declared that if you could make your bills big enough they would support you. His theory was that after you have expended credit to the breaking point, a merchant would rather continue than face prospects of losing all in court litigation.

Extravagant wives are the most difficult debtors. There is the wife of a Washington millionaire whose accounts have been closed in nearly all New York shops. High class jewelers, dressmakers and milliners have a Society Dead Head List. So have expensive cafes.

Among names on this list, which I have seen, are many whose daily social activities embroider the society pages. They are the bluest of blue bloods, prominent in all charity enterprises yet they will not pay just debts until forced to.

In most of these instances there is no lack of ready cash, but merely an inclination to procrastinate. Strictly speaking, they are not "deadbeats." Great stage and movie ladies are frequently notoriously slow pay. Some of the top notches have no credit whatever.

All the luxury shops, particularly the florists, suffer from this reluctance. This summer a wealthy bachelor was sued for $8,000, solely for orchids. Astute credit men prefer to extend credit to so-called "middle class." They are promptest of all.

A sleek, well-fed yowl of the flesh who is reputed to have fattened for years on the fruits of blackmailing shakedown cases came to a cafe the other night. "He reminds me," observed Damon Runyon with ambrosia elegance, "of a glossy and bloated heady-eyed rat."

There are many prim ladies, made famous by jazz hysteria, who do not realize that as a wise philosopher—Eddie Gueyst, I think—has said, what men admire best of all is the unsullied modesty and difference of a pure, good woman.

But they continue to marry the gold diggers! Copyright, 1920, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Half the ills of the human family follow abuse or neglect of the digestive organs. Dyspepsia and constipation are the most frequent effects of such misuses.

Just because the bowels move rather freely once a day, is no sure sign of the absence of constipation. This movement may be a delayed one, the material expelled being waste which should have passed away two days before.

Lowered vitality, which may be the effect of wrong eating, late hours, worry or continued and excessive fatigue, sometimes results in deficient activity in the muscle walls of the intestine. The general muscular tone falls below par. Naturally the digestive and eliminative organs depending on muscular action, are less vigorous than they should be.

This state of affairs may account for the beginning of the constipation, but when the intestine fills up with the undigested materials, fermentation takes place. With fermentation and decay, further complications are to be expected. Poisonous toxins develop and these are eager to attack the system and undermine the health.

Almost always an acute infection is founded on a constipated condition. If you are in prime health, you are unlikely to "take" diseases. Your powers of resistance are high and you can snap your fingers at sickness.

In dealing with constipation, the effect, we must first of all be for its presence. By better living, better hygienic standards and better choice of foods, constipation need not be feared. But its correction takes time.

To get rid of the dangerous accumulation in the lower bowel, it may be necessary to take a cathartic or laxative. Needless to say, such treatment does not "cure" the constipation. All it does is to clear out that particular cargo of offensive material. But that is most desirable, particularly if you have a cold, sore throat, headache, or other evidence of acute infection.

Sprays and gargles and pills and powders may give temporary relief to the acute trouble, but their effects will be for more satisfactory if the bowels are emptied. There can be no doubt that a clogged intestine delays the healing of any disease.

Now please do not get the idea that daily purging is good for you—it isn't. Nothing is more damaging than frequent resort to cathartics and purgatives. Correct your eating and manner of living and you will need no medicine. Right living is vastly more important than all the medicine in the world.

Answers to Health Queries.

C. M. M. Q.—What is the normal blood pressure?

A.—This depends upon the age of the patient and the conditions governing his particular case. The normal blood pressure should be approximately 100 plus your age, although it may vary a few points in either direction without causing alarm. Your doctor will advise you.

MRS. I. A. D. Q.—What do you advise for anemic children?

A.—Give them plenty of green vegetables, broiled liver and beef juice.

E. H. AND R. M. Q.—How much should a girl of sixteen, five feet four inches tall, weigh? Two a girl aged fourteen, five feet three and one-half inches tall?

A.—What do you advise for gaining weight?

A.—They should weigh respect-ably. The rich and socially prominent no longer go into seclusion when scorched by the red flare of scandal. They face the music with flags flying. Recently a noted gentleman was sued by an avenger for a lady presented as his fiancée. The gentleman was married. That afternoon the story spread-eagled front pages. The same evening at a smart new and urban decorated restaurant the gentleman and his wife attended a dinner party, displaying themselves conspicuously. In this fashion they attempted to bridge busy tongues.

A court yard accordion player in a velvet coat and tam has become still another sensation at smart apartment soirees. He was picked up one night by a crowd of roysters in a speakeasy and played so engagingly he is now in demand at $100 a night.

She is a lady whose heart has never known its springtime. For 20 years she presided over a musty private library, and recently, through death of its owner, came into a small fortune. Now, gray haired and faded, she goes the rounds of cafe and first night, puffing at cigarettes and trying to keep step with an age that has passed her.

The Man Behind the Machine.

There's a human factor in industry. The business man who can see no farther than the nose on his face may not glimpse it, yet it concerns his own welfare because it concerns that of everybody. One side of it was brought out in the address of Secretary of Labor Davis before the Moose convention here. "Business men who throw out of employment workers over 45 years of age are merely in the interest of efficiency," he said, "are creating a serious problem of unemployment which the United States government will have to solve." No able-bodied man of middle years should be thrown out of employment when he seeks it, merely because he has reached middle years. If his step is not quite so brisk as it was, he has compensation in the form of experience, judgment, familiarity with the traditions of his calling. In a regiment it is often the case that the most valuable men are neither the rookies nor the latest West Pointer assigned to it, but the veteran drill sergeants who lick the raw material into shape and set a solidly example. Is it really otherwise in a shop or office?

Behind a machine there is always a man. What does it profit a manufacturer to drive so hard a bargain with his men, and see other manufacturers do the same, that their ability to consume his product is diminished? Somebody must buy his goods. What does it profit the country to open its gates to unrestricted immigration on the plea that the labor of other countries is needed in its shops? Such wholesale competition not only tends to break down the wage scale and lower the standard of living, but it introduces racial elements, that change the character of the population.

Production is only one side of industry. Consumption is equally important. And not until industry produces as fast as the man who consumes but also of what its products do to both, is it on a solid foundation. — Cincinnati Times-Star.

Premature.

Considerable agitation is being displayed by the French press over the visit of Ramsay MacDonald to the United States. The organs of the conservative right and the radical left both are agreed that little good for France can come out of the conference between Premier MacDonald and President Hoover.

Liberte, conservative newspaper, appears to express the general French attitude when it declares that the aim of the United States and Great Britain is not to organize for peace, but first to put France in such a situation that she will no longer be a great nation and then impose an American and British peace on the world. In other words, France sees the conference as an effort on the part of the British to escape the entente cordiale with her.

The alarms of France may or may not be well grounded. However, they are based upon the premise that the United States and Great Britain will come to terms. Unquestionably great pressure is being exerted in this direction and doubtless there are many persons in both countries sincerely hoping for favorable results. But there is little as yet to indicate that Premier MacDonald's mission is assured of success. A glimpse into past history reveals that good relations between the United States and Great Britain during the last half century have been in proportion to the fear of Germany. That fear no longer exists. Instead it has been supplanted by economic rivalry between the two countries.

France may receive some assurance from a similar experience through which the United States passed a year or so ago when it was whispered that Great Britain and France had agreed to strengthen their entente cordials. The United States was quite as alarmed as France is at present, but nothing came of Sir Austen Chamberlain's plan. Who knows but that France will discover that her present alarms are equally unnecessary? In any event, as matters now stand, they at least may be regarded as decidedly premature. — Baltimore Evening Sun.

PALLETTE WINS IN SLEUTH ROLE

Eugene Pallette is Hollywood's private detective. He has played the part of a human bloodhound in four consecutive all-talking pictures—namely "The Dummy," "The Canary Murder Case," "The Studio Murder Mystery," and now "The Greene Murder Case," which is the attraction at the State theater.

During the 19 years that Pallette has been in motion pictures, he has played the role of a detective in at least 40 productions.

In "The Greene Murder Case," Pallette is cast in the same role that he portrayed in "The Canary Murder Case"—that of Sergeant Heath, the slightly thick-headed homicide investigator whose bungling attempts to aid William Powell as Philo Vance is solving the crime provided fun for audiences throughout the nation.

"Win the audience's sympathy, follow a tearful scene with a laugh and you've got folks eating out of your hand," is Pallette's cryptic recipe for successful screen comedy.

Pallette makes an ideal comedy detective because he looks like the film fan's conception of one. He is short of stature, comfortably round and has an Irish twinkle in his eye.

MISS COSTELLO AT AMERICAN

Warner Bros. did well in selecting "Hearts in Exile," now at the American theater, for the fair Dolores Costello. It is the first time she has appeared in the role of a Russian peasant girl and her performance proves that she is one of the most versatile of screen actresses. The picture is an exciting story of love and heartbreak, laid in the midst of the peasantry of Moscow and the great icy waters of the Siberian prison camps.

"Hearts in Exile" shows what great strides the Vitaphone has made since the advent of talking pictures. The sound effects are perfect. You hear the howling of the wind in the desolate, icy country, the babble of the fish peddlers along the water-front of Moscow, and the gay singing and music of the Bohemian peasants.

Miss Costello gives a truly fine performance as the little Russian girl who is torn between marrying her peasant lover or the grand nobleman, Baron Palma. She marries Baron and, naturally, a triangle forms that reaches a dramatic climax in the dreary setting of Siberia.

Grant Withers gives splendid support as the star's leading man.

DR. FU MANCHU MYSTERY STORY

Sound has more than doubled the effectiveness of mystery melodrama in pictures, according to Rowland V. Lee, veteran Paramount director, who has just completed the picture of the all-talking thriller, "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," now at the Ceramic theater.

"The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," the famous Sax Rohmer story, has been made to live on the screen through the sound medium. The atmosphere of mystery and dramatic realism that permeates the story are considerably heightened by the audibility of the accompanying sounds and dialog.

The picture opens with a battle scene in Peking, China, during the Boxer rebellion and the staccato crack of rifles, the distant rumble of cannon, the shouts and the screams add tremendously to the reality of this action. Then the story shifts to present-day London where the crafty Dr. Fu Manchu seeks his vengeance on the families of the officers who lead the Pekin defence. Striking with an unseen hand, the oriental fanatic operates with a mystery that baffles even Scotland Yard.

Warner Oland, famous on the screen for his oriental roles, has the title role and the supporting cast includes Joan Arthur, Neil Hamilton, O. P. Heggie and William Austin. Sax Rohmer has written many mystery stories of rare, thrilling power but "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu" is the first to reach the screen. It is an unusually strange story.

CAST OF 100 IN "GOOD NEWS"

"Good News," a show that will appeal to everyone who acknowledges the supremacy of youth, comes to the Ceramic theater on Thursday. Nearly every member of its large cast and chorus, has not yet seen twenty-three, and the whole thing is done with such a spirit of youth that it is intoxicating.

It is a play of youth at a co-educational institution in a small town, where everything is done except study. The play is set in the midst of the football season, and this and love making seem to be the chief concerns of everyone who goes to this particular college. It seems to be all right at Tat college for a boy and a girl to embrace openly in the middle of the campus, in front of all the other students. Nothing is thought of it and it makes good material for a high class musical comedy.

Throughout the proceedings many tuneful song numbers are introduced. These include "Just Imagine," "The Varsity Drag," "Lucky in Love," "Good News," "The Best Things in Life," "Happy Days," and "Girls of the Pi Beta Phi."

The company is a big one, approximating 100 people. George Olsen's "Good News" band with Tick Wardwell directing, is one of the features.

The New BUICK

If you were to lift the body from the chassis of any one of a hundred cars—and compare the vital details of chassis design and construction—you would find Buick so outstandingly superior in all phases of fine car engineering that you would almost inevitably make Buick your choice. Here is what you would see in this famous chassis:

Lovejoy Duodraulic Shock Absorbers—front and rear. Combining to check both bound and rebound, and providing a degree of riding ease without parallel anywhere.

And, finally, such established Buick superiorities as the famous double-drop frame of toughest steel... the massive side and cross members reinforced at points of stress to insure greatest long life... the celebrated torque tube drive, Buick multiple-disc clutch, self-lubricating differential, and numerous other features.

When the list of Buick's chassis features—entirely aside from the irresistible appeal of Buick's new Fisher Bodies—reads like a roll-call of all that is soundest and best in fine car engineering... and when, in addition, you can buy a Buick for as little as $1225, f. o. b. factory... what wonder that all comparisons lead to Buick! What wonder that more than 2,000,000 people have invested their money in Buicks—and that from two to five times as many are purchasing this new Buick as any other automobile priced above $1200!

SILHOUETTE MODERN FASHION DECREE

Conforming to the new silhouette, fur coats have adapted themselves admirably to Fashion's dictates and are treated more on fabric lines than ever before. At right is shown a baby caracul coat with the snug waistline and flaring hemline which is to demerit. The sleeves boast a flaring cuff of baum marten and are fashioned to accommodate the new three-quarter length gloves, which have returned to favor. The down-in-back line is emphasized in this coat of black caracul, center. This, too, flaunts the snug waistline and the dipping hemline flares in accordance with the mode. The standing shawl collar and tiny ruffled cuffs are the latest innovation on fur coats to conform to the demand for femininity. Black caracul is also used as the medium of development in this wrap, left. Dyed squirrel forms the upstanding collar and edges the flaring top sleeve, which reveals the tight cuff beneath. "Clever Neckline Treatment"

PATTERN 8991 The Review 15c Practical Pattern

Individuality is achieved in this frock with an unusual neck treatment of collar and side jabot. The flared skirt is further enhanced by the girdle which is attached to the belt by means of a pointed tab corresponding with the bodice trimming. Smart cuffs finish the long sleeves.

Printed velvet, silk crepe or satin might be chosen for the making of Design 8991, with plain silk for the trimming. White and green dots on an olive green ground; white on black; beige dots on dull red—are just a few color schemes that suggest themselves for this delightful frock.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 32 requires 5½ yards of 36 inch material and 1 yard trimming.

This model is easy to make. No dressmaking experience is necessary. Each pattern comes to you with simple and exact instructions, including yardage for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

THE FASHION BOOK IS FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to The Review Pattern Department, 215 West 17th Street, New York City.

Owa-Ton-Na Brings Renewed Health To Local Resident

Stomach Disorders and a General Run Down Condi-tion Responds to This Natural Treatment.

When ill-health comes, too often the selection of the right remedy is not given careful consideration. Nature has endowed man-kind with its most delicate mechanism. Minute nerve ramifications in im-portant organs of the body can easily be deadened by harmful medicines thus interfering with the transmission of nature's warn-ings to the brain centers. The re-sult is that destructive poisons continue their work in delicate organs as long as such remedies are used, but upon their discontinu-ance, it is not long until the suf-ferer finds that their treatment has been of no avail. Thousands of sufferers have experienced this condition until finally they felt there was not any help for them.

Owa-Ton-Na proves itself ex-ceptionally valuable in obstinate cases which do not seem to re-spond to treatment. Oftentimes, relief in these cases are consider-able. It is not claimed that Owa-Ton-Na performs mir-acles; simply that it does what very few medicines do, and that it is to cleanse from the system harm-ful poisons which are causing disease. The surety with which nature's roots, herbs, barks and berries as compounded in this in-dian formula, Owa-Ton-Na, act is daily experienced by thousands of sufferers. They act not by doper and deadening but by stimulating normal functional activity which results in a natural elimination of disease.

Take the case of Mrs. Mary Burrows, 123 West Second street, East Liverpool, Ohio, who has suffered for the past eight years with vari-ous disorders which defied treat-ment after treatment but Owa-Ton-Na brought results in a short time. Mrs. Burrows says: "I hardly knew what it was to enjoy a good meal and I had to be so careful what I ate as it seemed almost any-thing would mean suffering after-wards. Many times, I didn't feel like eating at all but simply ate because it was mealtime."

"Food caused gas to form in my stomach and I would belch a bitter, greenish fluid. I would have head-aches for days at a time which made me greatly discouraged. I suffered with constipation, dizzy spells and backaches and I never seemed to have any energy or pep, always feeling tired and all in.

"What a big change Owa-Ton-Na made in just such a short time. I could even notice a difference from the first bottle. Now I can eat almost anything I want with-out distress, food tastes good and my bowels act regularly. Head-aches, dizzy spells and backaches are all a thing of the past. I suf-fered for years with running sores on my limbs and these have shown marked improvement due to my general condition being better. I feel better than I have for years.

Owa-Ton-Na certainly has worked wonders for me. Anyone who is suffering should certainly give Owa-Ton-Na a trial as I feel they, too, will be surprised with the re-markable way it cleans up the system."

You, too, may find in Owa-Ton-Na just the remedy you have been looking for. Why not call today at Carnahan's Drug Store, 114 East Sixth street, East Liverpool and have a talk with the special lab-oratory representative located there, to explain to eager health-seekers the merits of this fine old indian Remedy. This service is free and incurs no obligation. Owa-Ton-Na is also obtainable at Carnahan's East End and Newell, W. Va. Stores. —Adv.

"Have Your Insurance Written by Men Who Know"

Editorial From Review of October 1, 1929

Fire Prevention Week

East Liverpool will co-operate in the observance of National Fire Prevention week, beginning next Monday, in hopes of reducing the loss of life as well as heavy property damage which mounts annually.

If the appeal of President Hoover receives the response that it merits, there will be personal inspections of premises in addition to the inspection which will be made in business zones by firemen.

Thanks to the vigilance of property owners who have heeded admonitions regarding hazards, East Liverpool has had but one heavy fire loss this year. There has been the usual number of small blazes, but the losses will not total $100,000, it is believed.

Other cities, however, have not been as fortunate. And not infrequently, the blazes are attended by loss of life, as in the case of the Detroit night club, where a lighted cigarette was believed to have caused a fire which exacted a toll of 22 lives. Lighting, in the middle western states, is the leading cause of fires which annually kill 500 persons and entail a property loss of $13,000,000. Nine tenths of the fatalities are in rural zones, although the lighting rod is regarded as one of the best protections for farm buildings. Steel superstructure offers protection in cities.

However, there have been gratifying results in controlling fires and preventing fire loss. But there is room for improvement, and thus the need of Fire Prevention week, when there should be whole-hearted cooperation in cleaning out attics, cellars and other out-of-the-way places in which inflammables are hidden.

There is an individual responsibility during Fire Prevention week. Let's do our part in reducing the appalling annual toll.

Local Man Was Skeptical Till "Orange Root" Proved Its Worth

Mr. Geo. H. Johnson, for 16 Weeks a Physical Wreck, Says He Was Dubious About "ORANGE ROOT" as Nothing Else Has Ever Done Him Any Good.

"ORANGE ROOT" is truly all they claim for it and MORE," says Mr. Geo. H. Johnson, East Liverpool, Ohio. Mr. Johnson is very well known from one end of town to the other, and enjoys the respect and esteem of the entire city.

Continuing Mr. Johnson says: "For 16 weeks I was laid up with a severe case of influenza and was unable to do a thing. My whole system was poisoned with this dread disease and completely deranged my whole system. My nerves were all shot and I could not eat or sleep at night. Dreadful pains thru my stomach kept me in misery all day long. I was constipated, bilious and subject to terrible dizzy spells. The poison in my system was sapping all my strength and vitality, for I was weaker than a cat. Indeed, I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Friends who realized the seriousness of my condition urged me to try this 'ORANGE ROOT' Iron & Celery Compound. I was dubious about taking it for a thing had given me the slightest relief. But, to my surprise and amazement, ORANGE ROOT proved to be the exception to the rule. It is really astounding what this wonderful compound has done for me. I have taken 3 bottles of it and a few of those golden Nuggets, and can truthfully say, I FEEL LIKE A NEW MAN.

UNCLE POM

By Henry C. Rowland

A sparkling, swift-moving mystery romance

SYNOPSIS.

Pomeroy Penfold, a wealthy American widower, nearing 50, loves to travel and visit friends. When the story opens he is a guest at the chateau of his sister, Alicia, and her husband, the Comte de Renner. He is disturbed by the sight of an intruder—a man in a yachting costume—who appears on the estate, and stares rudely at Maia, the count's lovely 23 year old daughter by a first marriage. Maia admits having met the man in America, and says his name is Capt. Seagrave.

Kirby Colton, handsome scapegrace son of an American bishop, an old friend of the Penfold family, calls at the chateau unexpectedly and is invited to spend the night. He, too, has met Maia in America. The count surprises Uncle Pom by telling him Maia loves him and indicating the marriage would please him. Maia overhears them and confirms her father's remarks. Later she confesses that both Kirby and Seagrave are erstwhile suitors. Knowing the two hate each other, Uncle Pom goes in search of Kirby to avoid a clash. He is attacked from behind, knocked unconscious, and robbed of a belt containing priceless diamonds. That night a prowler in his room tries to choke him, then escapes. Maia suspects Seagrave of both attacks—he is always in financial difficulties—but Kirby announces that he is offering an alibi for his rival. And he confides in Uncle Pom that he has not come to see Maia, but to borrow $1,000 to save an innocent girl from trouble. Penfold gives him the money.

Seagrave calls, and is unabashed when Penfold tells him he is under grave suspicion for assault and battery. He denies the charges, announces that he intends to marry Maia, and infuriates Penfold by hinting he knows something to the girl's discredit, which he will use as blackmail. Pressed for details, he declares she is involved in a case of murder, and says Colton can confirm the story, as he was a witness. Colton explains that Maia did shoot a man in America by accident, but through Seagrave's fault. He challenges the latter to a duel, but later agrees with Penfold that this would only bring scandal to Maia's name and the best thing for Kirby to do is to clear out at once.

First, however, Kirby makes a deposition, swearing he fired the shot, in order to forestall more blackmail threats, and surprises Penfold by confiding that he has just put through a coup with European financiers that will make him rich. He pays off the $1,000 on Seagrave's yacht, hoping to get rid of him, because he feels Maia has more cause to fear him since she asked Kirby not to clear his rival's name with the alibi.

That night Uncle Pom is disturbed by a noise downstairs and, investigating, finds that the count's servants have disappeared. He suspects a duel and begins to search the grounds. He hears Maia and Kirby talking in the moonlight and discovers they are in love. He releases Maia from the engagement and then tries to persuade Kirby not to go on with the duel but in vain. Seagrave proves to be the more skillful fencer. He injured Colton, though not seriously.

Mr. Penfold is still puzzled about the theft of his diamonds, when Maia confides it was she who took them, when she found him lying on the beach unconscious. She did it, hoping to use a charge of theft to dispose of Seagrave. But she declares she did not take the money.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

THE TRUE KNIGHT.

"Well," Mr. Penfold mused, "you took an awful chance on his grabbing you and the diamonds, too, and loading you aboard his yacht and sailing for parts unknown. He is entirely capable of that. He'd have staked his liberty on coercing you into saying that you had eloped with him of your own free will, when nabbed. And," Mr. Penfold added dryly, "he'd have gone about it in the classic ruthless pirate way."

Maia said calmly, "I went prepared for that. I had a pistol packed with me to carry when I am driving alone. There are voyous here as well as in America—bandits who come across from England to escape the police over there. One of these might have been down on shore."

"Possibly," Mr. Penfold assented.

Maia slipped her hand in her bosom and drew out a little packet of tissue paper.

"Here are the diamonds, Uncle Pom. Perhaps the best plan would be to tell Seagrave that we are not going to be married after all."

Mr. Penfold took the parcel and slipped it under his pillow. "Thanks for the safe custody, my dear. You really did save them, after all. I hate to treat with a man like Seagrave, but if his yacht is still here in the morning I'll go have a talk with him. After all, he didn't act so badly last night, and there's no question of his love for you—such as it is."

A fine tremor seemed to ripple through Maia. "I'd rather marry a Hottentot."

Mr. Penfold could not refrain from saying, "Oh me. I'll marry you still, if you really wish it." She leaned toward him and her eyes burned into his. "You are the finest man I ever knew. Not counting daddy, of course."

"No, that was a short, happy, crazy dream, my dear. Our former relationship was the best. About Kirby, now. He is entirely outside all this. He's behaved the true knight from the start, according to the best traditions of the Old Dominion. He is in love with you, of course, and that made it all the finer."

Maia said slowly, "Yes, I was all wrong about Kirby. But it was all for you, Uncle Pom. He worships your footprints."

"Say it was for us both. Kirby humiliated himself and borrowed from me to pay off Seagrave's libel, on the off chance of getting rid of him. Kirby has just put through a deal that will bring him a small fortune. He told us the truth about those papers. Now, I wonder—"

Mr. Penfold sat up a little straighter in bed. The pebble had started a fresh avalanche of thought.

"Wonder what, Uncle Pom?"

"O, never mind, now. Go to bed, Maia. I'm all done in."

Maia rose, stooped, kissed him, and went out, leaving a faint aroma of jasmine.

"This investigation of mine," Mr. Penfold said a little pompously to Kirby next morning, "is stalled on the problem of who tapped me on the head."

"Seagrave isn't stalled," Kirby grumbled. "I made a beautiful bloomer of that."

"That's a lot better for you than if you had made a beautiful corpse of Seagrave," Mr. Penfold said.

"The worst of it is he passed up several chances of making a silly corpse of me," Kirby complained. "If there's any one thing I loathe being indebted to that blackguard for, then it's my life."

"Those scars of his might have told you something. They plainly weren't made by bottle glass."

"I suppose he felt he owed me something, since he'd just gypped me out of a hundred and seventy-five pounds," Kirby complained. "And the worse of it is, I'm in honor bound to alibi him, blight him." He groaned. "That's all that stands between him and the salad basket."

"Tell me just what happened after you left the comte and myself to look for Seagrave," Mr. Penfold said.

"I came on him down there on the shore where you were knocked out. I've already told you of what was said and his surprise that it was you and not myself to whom Maia was engaged."

"Yes, what then?"

"We talked for quite awhile. Then he started back to where he'd left his boat, the place where we met last night. I suppose as there's no other proper landing where he could have a boat. I went the other way. As I was turning into the park, I looked back and saw Seagrave way down the shore, on a little point that thrust out."

"Are you sure that it was Seagrave?"

"Absolutely. The sun was smack on him, and there was no mistaking his yacht cap and blue serge coat and white duck breeches. I sat down then on the edge of the woods to think things over a bit, and a few moments later I caught slight of you going down the lane—but it didn't occur to me that you were looking for me. As you must have been knocked out a few moments later, Seagrave couldn't have got back all that distance in time to do it. You know what the coast guard path is like, winding about and dipping into hollows. Besides, there'd have been no object in his tearing back again."

"How long did you sit there on the edge of the park?"

"Twenty minutes, or half an hour, maybe. I was wondering how Seagrave had found out that I'd pulled off this airport job and if there was anything he could do to make trouble for me."

"This was news to Mr. Penfold. Then he had spoken to you about that during your conversation?"

"Yes. He said in his damned sneering way, 'Now, that you're about to pull off your big deal, why don't you sail in and cut out old Croesus?' I told him that Maia had too much sense to fall for the sort of bum I'd been or the sort of rotter that he'd been and was and always will be."

"He must have picked up something in the Azores," Mr. Penfold said.

"Very well. He's pretty well acquainted there. I could like Seagrave, if he weren't such a cold blooded flying reptile. Like a pterodactyl!"

"He has his points," Mr. Penfold admitted. "What did you do then?"

"I remembered suddenly that the days were longer here and it must be getting on to dinner time. So I got up and started for the house."

On the edge of the lawn I met Maia, and she told me that she and her father had found you lying unconscious and that she was hurrying to telephone the doctor and get first aid things. The comte came along just then, and we hurried to where you were." "Kirby," Mr. Penfold asked, "didn't you come here really to tell Maia about what you'd accomplished and ask her if there wasn't to hope over in America?"

She rushed to the bedroom, secured a revolver and shot him twice. He died soon after. Now she is held without bail on a first degree murder charge for early trial.

"No, sir. She was jolly and companionable and seemed to like playing around with me. There were moments though—" he checked himself—

"Yes?"

"Well, when I felt that if I'd been a different sort of chap I might have had a show."

ATWATER KENT SCREEN-GRID RADIO

The Amazing Story of the Set That Has Revolutionized Radio

WHY does the Atwater Kent Screen Grid Set give you so much better reception than you have experienced before?

Here's the answer:

Screen-Grid is a new amplifying tube. It solves a problem that has held back the progress of radio for seventeen years.

This problem was: How to make a receiving set more powerful without causing some of the electrical energy within the set to "feed back" and ruin tone quality.

And why should a radio need more power?

Because Power unlocks the secret of better performance at every point and puts it at your finger tips in the form of lovelier tone, more flexible volumes, finer selectivity and longer distance—the four aces of radio.

As engineers racked their brains over the puzzle of forcing more power through a receiver without sacrificing tone, they discovered that it could be done by completely shielding some of the amplifying tubes—shielding them inside and outside, and thus preventing wanton imps of electricity from straying off the road and causing trouble.

That's what Screen-Grid is. Now for the rest of the story.

How a dream came true!

To the Atwater Kent laboratory, one of the great laboratories of the world, came the news that the Screen-Grid tube was perfected. Exciting news!

If ever there was a time for action, this was it, AND ATWATER KENT ACTED!

A completely new receiving set was designed to convert all the marvelous possibilities of the new tubes into better reception for the radio listener at every point.

Tubes by themselves are just glass and metal. It isn't merely the tubes that make the new Atwater Kent so much better. It's the way they are used—completely used.

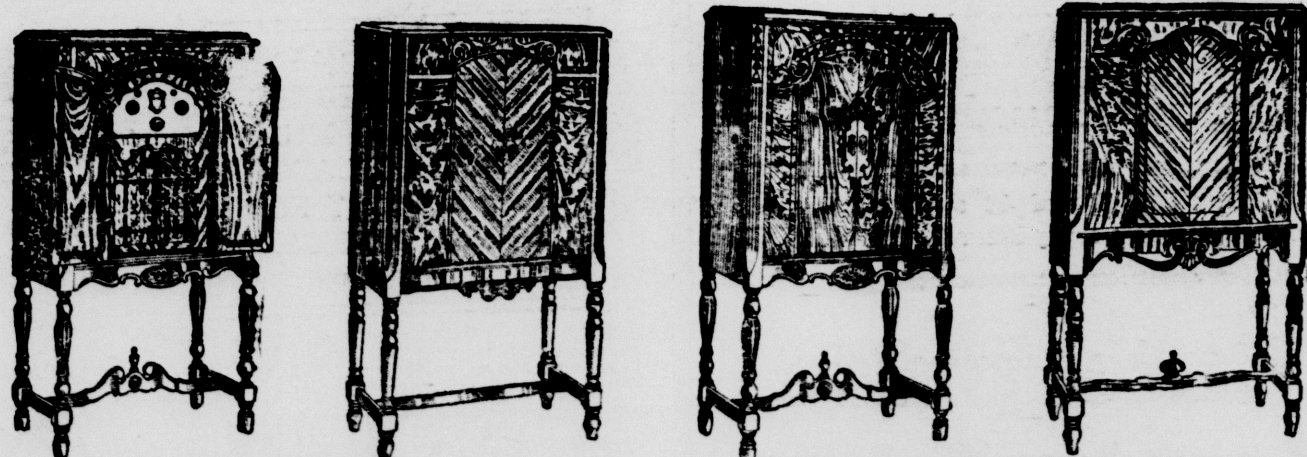

Meanwhile Atwater Kent spent millions of dollars on devising and purchasing new machinery—much of it replacing machines which themselves had been the last word in up-to-dateness only a short time before.

Sets the pace for all others!

On May 1st Atwater Kent announced Screen-Grid Radio, told the public it was a sensational perfected improvement, and that it could be had in the widest possible choice of exquisite cabinets.

Knowing that an Atwater Kent statement can be taken at its face value, thousands bought the first week and more and more thousands have bought every day since then and are doing it now.

That's the story of Atwater Kent Screen-Grid, the set that has revolutionized radio. Our advice to anyone is: Break any engagement you've got and listen to it. It's just that good! And it doesn't hum!

SERIES SHARPS GUESS QUINN INTO A'S LINEUP TODAY

Believe Mack Will Take Flier On Aged Veteran

Others Figure Earnshaw for Duty on Slab Today Against Cubs; Bruins, Despite Set-back, are Hopeful.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—It may have been the morning after yesterday, to some people, but Chicago, rallying overnight from the disturbing defeat of its Cubs in the first game of the world series, saw it only as the morning before this afternoon. This, in other words, was to be another day, bringing with it another game between the Cubs and the Philadelphia Athletics, and the town was ready to forget the mistakes of the past in its hope of the immediate future.

It consumed a lot of poison yesterday while the Athletics were getting home with what might be termed a No. 5 iron in the person of Howard Ehmke but today its head was high, its eye was clear and its heart was whole again. In brief, Chicago had only a mild hangover to show for its distressing defeat.

That was how the town figured it, anyhow. There were six games yet to be held and most of the loyal citizens still felt that the series would have to be played on a basis of seven-or-no-count.

In consequence, the same thousands who watched the games stay closed on Monday night were back again for more watching last night and there wasn't a single kick-back reported from the 35,000-odd who held reserved seats. Another capacity crowd of 51,000, therefore, will be back in there very resolutely and ruggedly when they ring the bell for the second game of the great series at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, provided the man in charge of the weather does right by little Nellie. At last reports, he was speaking in a very threatening manner about showers late today.

Five Gets Eight on Cubs.

Anyhow, game or no game, the smart money granted Chicago its right to be loyally optimistic and then proceeded to lay itself down on what it deemed to be the prospective winner. There was no doubt that the Athletics enjoyed both a practical and tactical advantage as a result of Connie Mack's master strategy in the first game, and today you could get 8 to 5 for your money if you still liked the Cubs. Some of the more sanguine Cubs, in fact, were of the opinion that everybody would be out of the benches and into the bath by Saturday night and there was a story that was not without logic.

Ehmke, the No. 5 pitcher on the ball club, had paid off on one of the greatest gambles ever taken by a baseball manager. Thirteen Cubs were fanned—Hornsbey, Wilson and Cuyler twice each—for a world series record and the Cubs never would have scored at all except for Dykes' wild throw in the ninth inning. Grove wasn't seen except as a warm up pitcher. Earnshaw did not even appear above the level of the dugout. The Athletics, in effect, had won the ball game without disclosing the real strength of their hand.

Having done that much, perhaps the astute Mr. Mack will pitch Ira Thomas in the second game today. I am aware that Ira Thomas no

EHMKE, ON VERGE OF BEING FIRED, ASKED BUT ONE CHANCE; HE GOT IT!

By JIMMY CORCORAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Not so long ago Howard Ehmke, who stood the Cubs on their top pieces yesterday, wasn't good enough for the 15 other clubs in the American and National leagues. The story goes that Mr. Cornelius McGillicuddy, known as Connie Mack, decided that there wasn't another good shake left in Ehmke's arm. And being a business man he tapped the interest of those 15 other teams in this guy who casts the baseball at the hitter in a low-down manner.

The reply, as the story goes, came back from Judge Landis' office that Howard wasn't wanted. "Every team in both leagues has waived on you," Mack told the long-gangling chucker. "There is nothing for me to do but let you go."

And then Howard Ehmke, the same who made several varieties of waving geraniums out of the esteemed Cubs at Mr. Wrigley's plant broke down and wept. "Mr. McGillicuddy," he said, "Give me a chance to finish out the season and get into the world series. I want to pitch one game against the Cubs and I'll win. I don't want any pay. All I ask is a shot at those Cubs."

And so yesterday Ehmke had his shot at the Cubs. Did he produce for Connie? He did. And you can bet your family altar that he isn't going to go unwarded.

Probably they did agree to waive Howard out of the National and American leagues—those 15 clubs—but the waiving process can't begin to come up to the waving that the Cubs did in Mr. Ehmke's direction yesterday.

TOLEDO HOPES ARE BLASTED

HERO AND GOAT IN CUB DEFEAT

WOODY ENGLISH

Woody English, "kid" short stop of the Chicago Cubs who bowed to the Athletics yesterday, 3-1 in the first game of the series, looms as both hero and, possibly, the goat of the opening clash.

The veteran Howard Ehmke silenced the mighty bludgeons of the Cubs' big guns, Hack Wilson and Robbers Hornsbey, but English crashed two of the hurler's slants for safe hits. Incidentally, he got the first hit of the series.

Then English blew two chances in the first of the ninth and two runs trickled plateward, including, it developed afterward, the winning tally.

Boosters to Make Toronto Game Gala Event.

"A.L. hands on deck for the Booster day celebration Saturday afternoon at Patterson Field."

This is the appeal issued today by officers and members of the East Liverpool Athletic association in preparation for the high school battle with Toronto grid-ers on the local field.

Plans for getting out a big delegation of fans for the event were

WOMEN'S CLUB TO HOLD PARTY

Members of the Women's Athletic club, an auxiliary organization to the East Liverpool Athletic association, will entertain at a card party Friday night in the Elks' temple, West Fifth street.

Tickets may be procured at Fleming's, Larkins' drug store and Dick Brian's haberdashery. The party is one of a series arranged as a benefit for the new bleachers recently installed by the association. Mrs. Lawrence Brown will be chairman of the Friday night party. All assistance possible is urged in the success of the party and the bleacher project as well.

discussed by the association at a meeting last night.

The association would like to see the recently erected bleachers, which some day will become the property of the high school, filled to capacity.

Capacity crowds will be necessary, they point out, to pay off the bleachers within the period anticipated.

The association has extended an invitation to the Toronto mayor and official family as well as to a number in general there to attend the event.

The Toronto high school band will be on the job, along with the well drilled, peppy squad of East Liverpool school musicians and the combined groups, the locals in their blue and white, and the visitors in their red and white, should prove an inspiring spectacle.

HEIDELBERGERS TO FACE KENT

TIFFIN, O., Oct. 9.—Coach Sayger is revamping his Heidelberg line. The "Student Princes" meet Kent college Saturday. The Heidelberg forward wall is being strengthened as a mark of respect to the little eastern Ohio team.

DAYTON FLIERS POLISH ATTACK

DAYTON, O., Oct. 9.—Coach Bauman is sending his Dayton Fliers through tough scrimmage and pass formations in sharpening his squad for its tilt with Wilmington Saturday. Andrus, a fullback, is expected to be started as a guard to partially make up for a deficiency of weight in the line.

PERRY EARNS QUARTER BERTH

BOWLING GREEN, O., Oct. 9.—Doyle Perry of Columbus, by virtue of fine work at Ypsilanti last Saturday, has earned a permanent position at the Bowling Green Palcons' quarterback job. Fred Prep, of Napoleon, has been shifted to halfback. Bowling Green rests this Saturday so practice is only light.

LIEPERSVILLE, Pa.—Billy Angelo, Liepersville, won a ten round decision over Young Ketchell, Chester, Pa.

BOWLING COLUMN

Millions and Liberties launched the Liberty duckpin campaign last night on the local alleys, the Mill-irons coping two out of three with some fairly good scores being registered in the inaugural skirmish. Johnny Greene indicated the old form was still there when he shot a 503 three-game total. Alcock finished with a 464.

Smith News and Kommell's Lunch will bowl Thursday night. The Lunchers take the place of the Club Billiards.

ALL STAR WINGS IN PITT FRAY

Fesler, Ohio, and Don-chess, Pitt, in Action.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 9.—When

Pitt and Ohio State meet in the Stadium on November 2, the football fans of the Tri-State district will have an opportunity of seeing two all-American ends in action.

Incidentally both these boys are from the same town, Youngstown,

Ohio.

Wesley Fesler, Ohio State terminal was picked on Grantland

Rice's team last year, his first season on the team. He is one of those sensational players who figure in every play.

It is doubtful, however, if he has ever stacked up against another end of the brilliancy of the Panther star, Donchess. Donchess is playing his last year as a Pitt regular. He is a tough man to take out of the play on the defense, and on the offense, he can not only handle the tackles, but is a clever performer at snaring forwards.

In the opening game of the season at the Stadium, Donchess figured in one of the most sensational plays ever pulled off in Pittsburgh, when he took a pass from Parkinson while falling over the goal line.

GIRL IS FOUND STRANGLED IN CAPITAL HOTEL

Tragedy of Jealousy And Liquor is Revealed.

LOVER IS HELD

National Geographic Society Employee is Victim.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(INS)—A tragedy of jealousy and liquor was revealed early today with the finding of the body of a pretty 23-year-old girl strangled to death by her sweetheart, in a room in the Hotel Roosevelt. The girl was Marjorie O'Donnell, an employee of the National Geographic Society here.

Her lover, Dexter Churchill Dayton, of Kansas City, Mo., was arrested and confessed the crime after he had sobbingly telephoned the room clerk "I killed my sweetheart." When police arrived they found Dayton kneeling beside the bed on which Miss O'Donnell lay dead, with his head on her breast. Dayton was a salesman for the Sun Life Insurance Co. here.

Physicians who pronounced the girl dead declared she had been killed sometime yesterday afternoon or evening. It was 3 a. m. today when Dayton telephoned the hotel clerk, and presumably he had been in the room stupefied by liquor since killing the girl. There were empty liquor bottles in the room.

The girl was dressed in an evening gown but her shoes and stockings were off as she lay on the bed. Her face was beaten and finger marks were on her neck. Apparently the murderer had placed her in a "comfortable" position on the bed.

Police found a pistol fully loaded and a box of cartridges under the mattress which the man had intended to use on himself, he told them. Dayton, when he sobered up enough, the police say, told them he had registered at the hotel Monday morning and met the girl later by appointment. They had a few drinks and began quarreling about attentions the girl had been receiving from another admirer.

Dayton said although Miss O'Donnell had taken only a few drinks, she fell asleep on the bed. He then seized her throat and strangled her. Marks on her knees and body showed she fought for her life. He said he had not relaxed his hold on her throat until he was sure she was dead. Then began his lonely vigil.

Whether a whale which recently drifted ashore near the golf course of Girvan, Scotland, is a "county," "royal," or "burgh" whale has aroused a discussion among the governing organizations. Some wanted to pay for its disposal.

The Girvan authorities convinced the county officials that they should remove it, and a South Paisley firm was ordered to do so at the county's expense. Then government officials at London said that it was neither a "county" nor "burgh" whale, but one of royal species. The county called off its whole-removers and united with the burgh in demanding that the government take its property. Last reports were that this would be done if the unwelcome visitor was of a certain length and girth, the head and tail to go to the National Museum in London.

BARREN REGION HIDES FATE OF FIVE IN PLANE

Pilot and Four Passengers Lost in North.

FAMILY ABOARD

No Word From Cherry Red Craft Since Saturday.

SASKATOON, Sask., Oct. 9.—(INS)—The barren Montreal lake region today continued to hide the fate of the Cherry Red Airlines plane and its pilot and four passengers who have been missing since Saturday.

The plane left Christopher lake Saturday morning bound for Lac La Ronge. It has not been heard from since it disappeared into the north.

Rumors the plane made a forced landing on Montreal lake were found groundless and increased fears for Pilot Alva Malone and his passengers, a missionary with his wife and two children.

Most of the aircraft in this country is at present engaged in a search for the lost McAlpine aerial exploration party, but the Western Canada Airways have loaned the Cherry Red Lines two planes to aid in the search.

Malone's projected flight was to cover, only 175 miles.

The morning and afternoon sessions were given over to a discussion of church and Sunday school problems in which state and county leaders participated.

Luncheon was served at noon and dinner in the evening in the First Christian church, Washington street, by women of the Newell churches.

ACTOR CALLED AS PANTAGES CASE WITNESS

W. T. Hale Will Testify Today for Prosecution.

SURPRISE MOVE

Messenger Boy Also On Stand in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—(INS)—Trial of Alexander Pantages, millionaire west coast theatrical man, was to go forward today with the scheduled appearance of W. T. Hale, motion picture actor, as a surprise witness in the attack case.

What Hale's connection with the case is or what the nature of his expected testimony will be, the prosecution failed to reveal.

Hale will take the stand, it is expected, when Louis Fisher, a messenger boy, has completed his testimony against the wealthy theater operator.

Fisher, 16, said he was the first person to see the struggle between Eunice Pringle and the elderly millionaire while the girl was trying to escape from the mezzanine conference room in the Pantages theater where the 17-year-old dancer charges she was attacked.

The boy told of hearing the girl's screams and of seeing her trying to free herself at the door of the room while a man's hand attempted to draw her back. He told of seeing Pantages within the room.

The boy admitted he saw no other persons at the door of the mezzanine room at the time when two other witnesses for the state swear several persons were gathered.

HARVARD MAN

Alan Hoover, son of the president of the United States, has entered the freshman class of Harvard University of School of Business Administration, at Cambridge, Mass. He graduated from Leland Stanford last year and when interviewed refused to make any comments, saying that he wanted to be treated just like an unknown freshman and not as the president's son.

Women are still working in fields of England just as they did during the World war and many city office girls spent their vacation in the fields last summer.
